Some of our works

Application in slightly satin textured burnished brass.

Everything starts from the iron rod, which is the soul of reinforced concrete. Campi's project preserved the groove necessary for the correct adhesion of the cement, now interpreted as the decoration of a natural and curved brass structure. Each piece can be paired and housed both externally and internally thanks to the coarse-grained anthracite cocciopesto finish used for the top. A very rare technique handmade by artisans, where Renaissance ways find new functional revolutions.

Welded mesh covered by nature. A rigid and severe industrial mesh designed to be a concept of softness. A humble material, linked to the habitat of construction sites and usually hidden from view, now the protagonist of the outdoors. The square electrowelded iron links are cooked and intertwined together like a tartan motif, creating different rhythms and giving the distinctive shape to the Elettra outdoor collection. Frayed at the bottom to recall the plasticity of the fabric, each piece becomes integrated into the landscape, allowing nature to grow through it, and cover it with new shapes.

Production of containers and accessories with a patinated/striped brass effect painted finish.

Liquid joy. Absolute freedom of composition. Consistent with the philosophy of liquid living applied by Massimiliano Locatelli in every piece of the Edizioni, the large Atollo table expresses hospitality in composed sinuosities and soft lines, allowing a discreet and elegant presence. Drops of water and bubbles - modular if necessary - to welcome diners, defined by the irregular rhythm of the legs in a spontaneous and fascinating joy. In this process, experimentation with jewellery enamels appears for the first time, poured into brass tanks and transformed into pleasantly precious finishes. The top can be customized on request in terms of dimensions and materials.

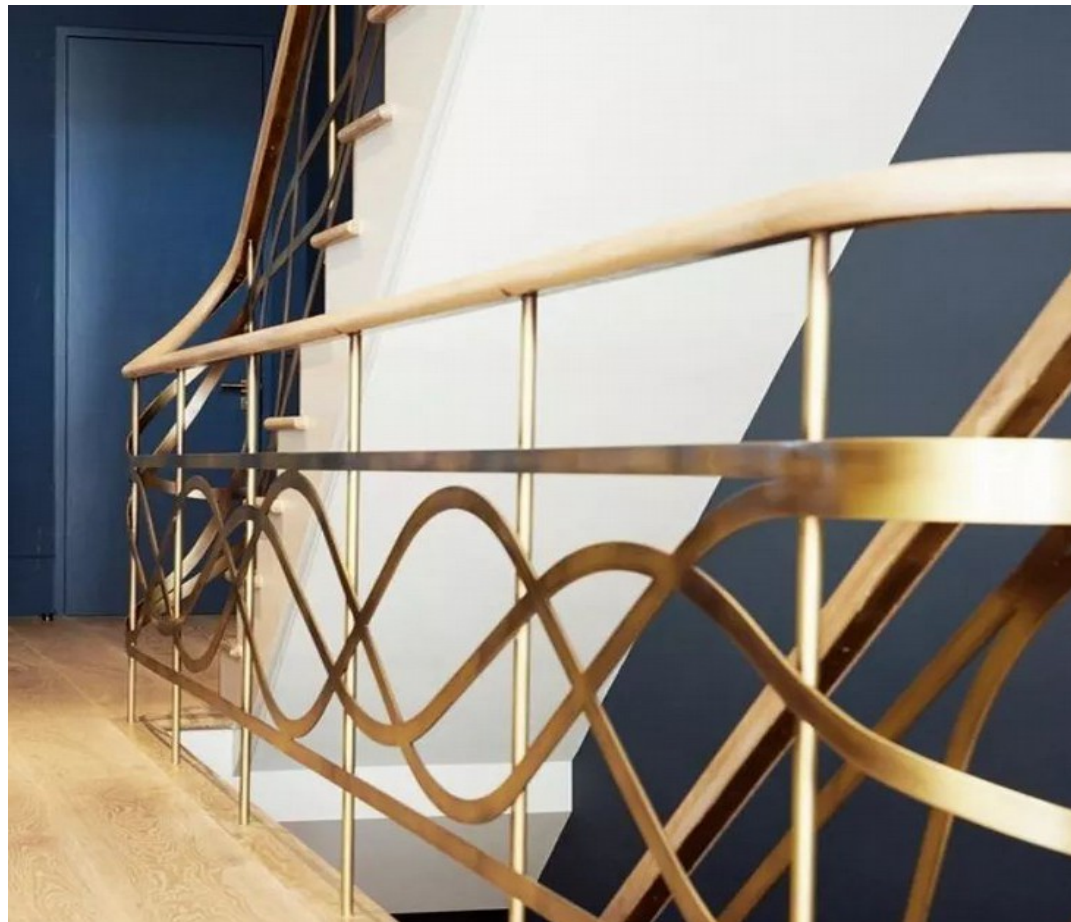

Paint application carried out on site with a cloudy copper finish to create an antique effect.

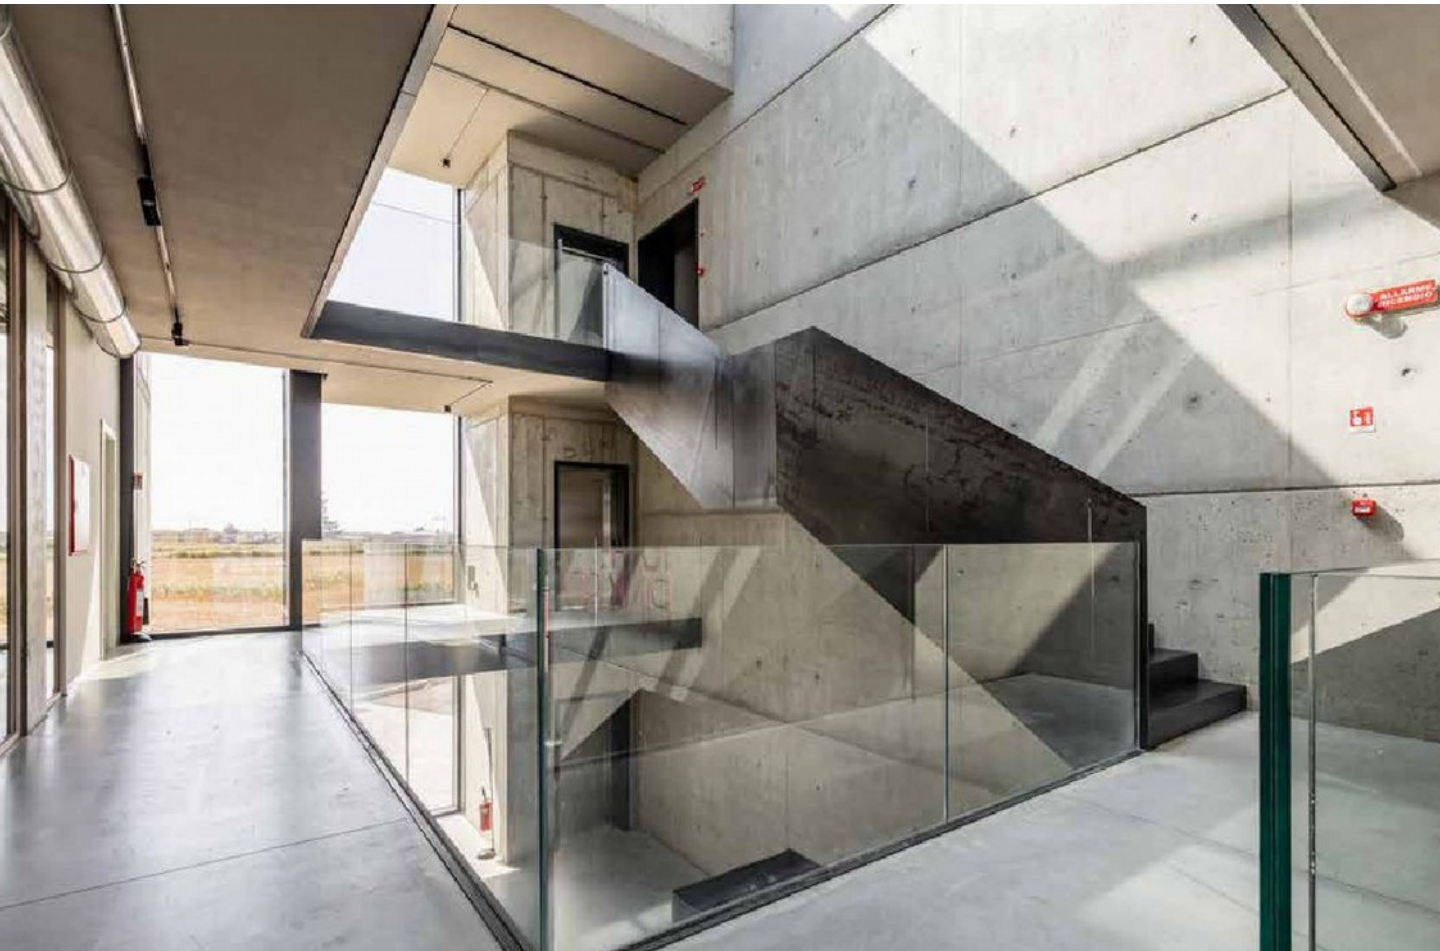

Application of antique shaded brass paint.
